

Navigation rules

The pages of each CD-ROM of this CD-ROM set bear two horizontal bars with the ECMA logo inscribed in white. Exception to this rule are the first (home) page and some documents not specifically produced for this CD-ROM (web pages, documents from Technical Committees).

In each document, the top bar is linked to the previous page and the bottom bar to the following page. However,

- On the first page, the top bar brings to the page directly linked to the document. For example, from the description of a standard to the list of standards, from the description of TCs to the list of TCs, from a page reached from a menu to the menu.
- On the last page, the bottom bar brings to the page directly linked to the document or to the first page of the document (if the document has only one page, the bottom bar is not always active).

Links to other documents exist in the body of each page. These links are words or set of words in a different colour.
